

Sustainable Sandhills Gains National Audience

Sustainable Sandhills Development Director Heather Brown shared the Sustainable Sandhills' story with a national audience at the Environment, Energy, and Sustainability Symposium and Exhibition (E2S2), May 4 – 7, hosted by The National Defense Industrial Association in Denver, CO. E2S2 brought government, academia, and military stakeholders together with defense industry suppliers to discuss mutually beneficial solutions to environment, energy and sustainability challenges facing our nation.

Heather developed and presented “Enduring Partnerships in Support of Regional Sustainability: The Sustainable Sandhills Model.” This presentation shared the partnership between Sustainable Sandhills, Fort Bragg and Sustainable Fort Bragg — and the benefits gained along the way.

Several military installations from across the nation were present for the presentation. Other installations were interested in applying the Sustainable Sandhills' model to with their surrounding communities. To view Heather's presentation, click here.

Sustainable Sandhills is a nonprofit organization working in the communities surrounding Fort Bragg. Sustainable Sandhills is committed to protecting our natural resources, encouraging green growth, and changing the ways we live, work and play. We will pass on a green and vibrant community to the generations that follow us. For more information about how you can get involved, please visit our website.