

NC Renewable Energy Tax Credits in Jeopardy

OUR CALL TO ACTION!!

North Carolina's Renewable Energy Tax Credit is in serious jeopardy of being cut this summer if state legislators in Raleigh do not take quick action. The tax credit has been a key driver behind the growth of North Carolina's green economy and is essential to renewable energy businesses across our state.

From the NC Sustainable Energy Association:

"If legislators approve a comprehensive sustainable energy legislative agenda this session, North Carolina will avoid the loss of more than 3,300 jobs and create an additional 9,200+ new green energy jobs in 2010. These are jobs that will remain long after the federal stimulus money is gone."

Please let your NC Senate and House representatives know (with a call or email) how important this issue is to you!

And if you can, call or email the chairs of the NC House of Representative's Energy & Energy Efficiency Committee (Rep. Angela Bryant) and House Finance Committees (Reps. Paul Luebke, Pryor Gibson, William Wainwright and Jennifer Weiss), specifically mentioning your interest and support for House Bill 372 and House Bill 512.
