

Ms. Amy Axon
Hydrogeologist, Source Water Assessment Program
Public Water Supply Section, Division of Environmental Health
North Carolina Department of Environment and Natural Resources
Raleigh, North Carolina

.....

Ms. Axon has served as a Hydrogeologist with the Source Water Assessment Program since April of 2004. Prior to obtaining this position, she was an Environmental Specialist, in the Customer Service Center; as well as a Hydrogeologist in the Underground Injection Control Program, Groundwater Section, Division of Water Quality, both in the NC Department of environment and Natural Resources (NC DENR).

Ms. Axon also served as an Environmental Specialist with the Division of Emergency and Remedial Response in the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency, and as an Environmental Engineer Tech with the Division of Waste Management in the Kentucky Department for Environmental Protection.

Ms. Axon is originally from Versailles, Kentucky, and received a degree in Geology from Guilford College in Greensboro, North Carolina. She attended graduate school at the University of Kentucky where she studied Hydrogeology.

Contact Information:

Email: amy.axon@ncmail.net

Phone: (919) 715-0674

www.deh.enr.state.nc.us/pws/swap